2. I talked with Ting Sheldon and [REDACTED] about the supergrade problem and the review which we undertook following our meeting with [REDACTED] on Tuesday, 9 October.

a. Ting is willing to give up five of the fifteen in the DD/I pool. (We will have to press him if we want him to give up any more.)

b. Tom is willing to give up five of the ten in DD/P. However, his thinking is that we should tell the Bureau of the Budget that we believe our concept is sound but that for the immediate future we will not use more than fifteen of the total pool of thirty.

I told Ting and Tom that we would show them the draft of our proposed reply to the Bureau before sending the letter.

3. [REDACTED] were in to brief me.

While hard to measure, it would appear that they are making good progress in the DD/I area, whereas they are still exploring in the DD/S area and this effort has not yet taken on a specific direction which would permit the measuring of progress. (One important matter which we should get at right away is the space for the computer center in the DD/I area. ADPS personnel are now sitting in this area. They should be moved somewhere almost immediately so that installation of the hardware can proceed. We ought also to take a good hard look at whether this is the right place for them while we are in the process of rejugling space in the building.) H

4. [REDACTED] telephoned to say that he hoped I would make a trip to [REDACTED] to look over our installations there. He will be glad to lay it on at any time, and he may accompany me if he can fit it in. I told him that I could not go on prior to 1 November but would hope to do so sometime during that month.
